

For Pain Just Over Your Eyes...Relief is Right Under Your Nose

Your face hurts, your nose is running and you have a cough. Is it a cold, is it allergies, is it sinusitis? Board Certified physicians at The Advanced ENT and Allergy Sinus Center say that if you have cold or allergy type symptoms that won't go away, there's a good chance you have sinusitis and it's best to visit your doctor.

Just what is sinusitis? Sinusitis is an inflammation of the membrane lining of the sinuses, (air-filled cavities) in the face.

If you have two or more of the symptoms listed below AND/OR thick green or yellow discharge you probably have acute sinusitis, which can last four or more weeks.

- Facial pain/pressure
- Nasal congestion
- Cough (in adults)
- Diminished sense of smell

Symptoms for chronic sinusitis last twelve weeks or longer and can include:

- Facial pain/pressure
- Facial congestion/fullness
- Stuffy nose
- Thick nasal discharge
- Possible headache

Today, with advances in diagnostic techniques and new medicines sinusitis is far easier to diagnose and treat than ever before. Experts estimate that 27 million people are afflicted with sinusitis each year, making it one of the most common health conditions in America. That number may even be significantly higher, since many sufferers never see a doctor for proper diagnosis and treatment. (may leave out if not enough space)

How do the physicians at The Sinus Center determine if you have sinusitis?

- First we assess the patient's history and symptoms
- Then the patient will receive a thorough ear, nose and throat examination
- Diagnostic tests may include a mucus culture, endoscopy (use of a scope to provide a magnified view of the sinuses), allergy testing or CAT Scan of the sinuses
